SOIL SURVEYS .. on the moon and the earth

TV viewers in Virginia and around the world watched two astronauts make a soil survey on the moon last week. The information gathered will be helpful to scientists in making interpretations about the age of the moon. It will also provide insight about the universe itself.

Soil scientists in Virginia are busy making similar soil surveys to collect information that will be useful to farmers, developers and other land users. These surveys are made by the USDA Soil Conservation Service and V.P.I. Agronomy Department. The incumbent Commissioner of The Revenue, John Curtis Caldwell, has announced his candidacy and will run as an independent.

Incumbent supervisor for the Southside District, John C. Cole, has indicated that he will run for the same office in November as an independent but has made no public announcement of this.

Supervisor Cole has said that the papers with voters names petitioning him to run for the office are already signed with the necessary 125 voters.

Deadline for anyone to file as an indspendent candidate for November's election is Tues., Sept. 14, with the filing period running between August 15 and Sept. 14. Independent candidates file with the Clerk of the Court.

Democratic candidates have already completed their necessary paperwork with the county Democratic committee headed by Rep. Abbitt.
